Introduction

Amrita hails from a distant village called Lenj Suku. Unfortunately, her mother passed away when she was born. She has a nuclear family setup with her father, stepmother, and two siblings - a brother and a sister. Being the youngest among her siblings, she attends school regularly. Amrita is capable of washing her own clothes and looking after herself. She stays in the hostel and maintains a neat and tidy environment. At the age of seven, she demonstrates independence and responsibility in her daily routines.

Project

Flowers

Topic: Amrita exhibited a strong passion for gardening, especially in nurturing flowers. She demonstrated the ability to identify the spiritual names and colours of flowers like the victory flower. Her enthusiasm for flower care was evident, as she rushed to water plants whenever needed. Amrita actively participated in discussing the significance of flowers, including their role in pollination, during presentations.

Animals Topic: In clay modelling, Amrita independently showcased her creativity by crafting a gorilla using red soil. She displayed knowledge of both domestic and wild animal names and enjoyed activities such as drawing bears and singing animal songs with actions.

Clothes topic:

Amrita possesses a keen interest in various activities. She has excellent drawing and colouring skills. Her patience is remarkable, evident in her meticulous approach to tasks. Amrita has crafted beautiful paper folding clothes, including frocks, lehengas, shirts, and full pants. Additionally, she has a melodious voice and sings beautifully. Recently, she learned a song about clothes and performs it with grace and actions. Though she initially struggled with the actions, she quickly improved and now performs them correctly. Furthermore, Amrita has mastered the art of folding clothes and even engaged in washing clothes with her friends. She is now capable of washing her own clothes independently.

Maths

Amrita is an exceptionally talented girl. She demonstrates proficiency in various mathematical skills, including writing numbers from 1 to 1000 without any difficulty. Her mental addition and subtraction abilities are commendable, allowing her to perform calculations quickly and accurately. Additionally, she excels in writing numbers and performing addition operations. Amrita finds story problems easy to solve because of her strong understanding of language and mathematical concepts. She can accurately place numbers in the correct tens, ones, and hundreds places. Furthermore, she is adept at mentally skipping counts of twos, threes, fours, fives, sixes, sevens, and eights. Her mental calculation skills are impressive, enabling her to perform calculations swiftly. Amrita not only excels in solving story problems but also has the capability to create her own.

English

Amrita was the first one to learn the alphabets and can write her own name with correct spelling. She can fluently say all the sounds and can arrange the alphabets on its order. Amrita recognizes both the small letters and also the capital letters. She was very fast while learning the sounds of single letters and also of two letters and now she has just started reading the three-letter words with the sounds. She is very fast in reading the words of three letters. She stays alert while listening to the stories. She is able to answer the questions that are asked to her while listening the stories. She is very fond of listening stories.

Hindi

Amrita's Progress:

Amrita demonstrates a genuine enjoyment of listening to stories and actively engages with the material by attentively responding to questions. Her creative abilities have notably improved, allowing her to effectively craft stories of her own. Through consistent exposure to Hindi moral short stories, she has enhanced her language skills, as evidenced by her ability to comprehend and retell the narratives.

While Amrita's voice may be soft when speaking in class, her participation indicates her understanding of the material and her willingness to contribute to discussions. She has shown proficiency in recognizing and pronouncing the Hindi alphabet, reflecting her dedication to language learning. Moreover, her ability to generate sentences using specific words showcases her understanding of vocabulary and sentence structure.

Although she faces challenges in reading consonants, Amrita's perseverance and hardworking nature enable her to overcome difficulties in acquiring correct pronunciation. Her enjoyment of singing and her ability to memorize song lyrics demonstrate her enthusiasm for musical activities and further contribute to her language development.
