

Mansi is a confident, frank and receptive girl. But before receiving any idea she always wants to know the reason behind it. She keeps asking until she is being told the reason. If she is not told, she makes up her own story regarding it and shares it with the diyas. Then asks "isn't it Didi"?

She is healthy and strong but sometimes very lazy to do her shramdaan. In fact she realizes that she is lazy.

Mansi is happy being in the hostel. When there is some special occasion - festival, or wedding she likes being at home.

At times she says "I want to go home every day evening and I'll come in the morning but my father does not agree with me".

She raises her voice when she sees something wrong.

If her teammates do not come to play or make chappatti or clean the group; she complains about them frankly.

She is friends with her group mates and other group children. She always has information about activities of other groups.

Academically Mansi is good. She has good understanding ability.

She has a strong memory, remembers songs and chanting well.

But she is not confident enough to sing a song or tell a story in the assembly hall.

She needs a lot of encouragement to do so.

She is improving slowly. She is becoming loud, clear and also overcoming her shyness.

Mansi writes about herself.

This is what I am.....

I am a girl my name is Mansi. Yes I am happy being a human. Because I can learn more things and I can see more things.

I like to listen to sweet voice. I don't like to listen to people who scream.

I have improved in English, Hindi and reading.

I have not improved in coming to school on time and responding to elders.

I like to sing songs and keep my things clean.

I need to make new friends and love every one.

MATH She was the first one in the group to finish the level V book but she is still not clear about fractions, decimals, measurement, area and volume.

She is a hardworking student. She does algebra very well. She has done LCM, HCF, Time and Tables, and measuring units etc.

Her confidence in doing math is very low. She needs help to solve the problems. Her work is very neat and clean.

ODIA LANGUAGE - Except some words and letters related with yuktakhar Mansi can read independently. Her pronunciation and listening skills are okay. She can write in the notebook neatly.

PROJECT WORK - Motivated and quick, she usually is the first to begin and finish her work. Though is naughty and vocal. Her handwriting is good, she writes neatly. She is good at mapping and other geography related topics.

In the project work when we do topic related to science and geography together, she is quick to comprehend the geography part. She takes time to understand the science part.

HINDI LANGUAGE - Mansi reads with a very clear voice and pronunciation. Her handwriting is equally good. While writing she takes care not to make any mistake.

She is interested to learn and write.

Given a topic she will always think and write something.

She is fond of writing poems, though sometimes she is distracted, takes time and does slowly.

She does not like full sentence dictation, although she doesn't mind doing a word dictation.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE - Mansi has overcome her initial stubbornness and is very eager in class.

She does her grammar exercises well though still needs more improvement in her spellings.

She speaks decently well in English.

During the drama, she was a little shy but managed her roles well.

She has a neat approach to her work.

Little lazy when it comes to writing stories but very interested in reading and that avenue allows her to work on her pronunciation.

Her writing is average but she surprises us with a great story now and then.

SANSKRIT LANGUAGE - Mansi is able to read Sanskrit sholkas and understand it.

She is able to read a story and translate it from Sanskrit to Hindi.

She has learnt to and enjoys creating sentences in Sanskrit.

Sometimes she makes grammatical mistakes.

PROJECTS - Mountain and ocean: As these topics are based on some geographical and scientific concepts Mansi faced some problem in understanding the concept of the formation of mountains and oceans.

For mountains, only reading and explanation did not work. So we tried to explain through object which was fruitful for her.

Though she understood the concept still she found difficulty to explain the formation of mountains to others.

She took interest in recognizing different mountains near by the school and in drawing their pictures.

To know oceans we showed a lot of picture of earth and the evaporation of molten lava. Slowly she could catch the concept and wrote it clearly.

Desert: Before starting the desert topic she learnt about the geography of the earth such as poles, hemispheres, climate zones, tropics and the equator. She has good comprehension skills.

Whenever she is asked to read a social science or science related book and given questions on those, she writes maximum correct answers.

She has good thinking ability as she made good questions about deserts and found the answers from the books in the library.

But she faced problem in understanding the formation of deserts. Through experiments, drawings, and role play she became a bit clear about all four seasons. She never got irritated when told to correct her mistakes repeatedly.
