When she first started doing counting, she started counting with the objects like pebbles, beads, empty pens, etc. She first did counting till twenty and then she counted further till hundred. When she got clear in forward counting till hundred, she then counted backwards from hundred. After assimilating all these, she started doing the skip counting of two, three, four, five and six. When she was learning the skip of two she did it very fluently. But the skip of three, four, five and six, in which she went a bit slow. She was good at doing the before and after numbers. At first she got confused a little, but she did it very well. She was also good at showing the numbers on the Ganit Mala. When she did the number recognition she did it very well. She first used the objects to recognize the numbers like using the pictures We also learnt stories and songs related to the numbers. After she recognized all the numbers she also learnt how to write them. She was very good at writing some numbers but some numbers like five, six and seven were a bit confusing to write. After doing all these she started doing some subtraction and addition between the numbers one to ten. She did the addition quite well but the subtraction was a bit slow. She also played with the jodo cubes, aakar parivar, and rongometry. Using these objects she also did the counting, segregating the objects according to their colours, shapes and sizes. With these objects she also made many 2-D, 3-D and flat patterns. She was very interested in playing with these objects. In aakar parivar she also put the shapes which were missing in between and she was very good at doing it. Using this she also arranged the shapes in ascending and descending order. She is good but she has to talk and cooperate more.
