INTRODUCTION

Subechha is a seven-year-old girl. She belongs to a nuclear family with both her parents and three elder sisters: Gita, Shruti, and Satrupa. Gita, her eldest sister, does not study at any school; she stays at home and helps her parents. Shruti, her middle sister, is studying at the same school as Subechha and is in the Perseverance Group. Her third sister, Satrupa, is also studying at the same school and is in the Receptivity Group. Subechha is from Leduguda, which is two kilometres away from the school. She is very regular at school and stays in the hostel.

CIRCLE TIME

While chanting, Subechha sits properly with her eyes closed and chants all the mantras softly and clearly.

She enjoys doing actions while singing and is interested in learning new songs. She has learnt songs like "There Was a Hole," "January for New Year," "Fly Went By," and others related to her project, such as "Ladybugs and Butterflies" and "Zip Zap-Zap."

PROJECT

Insects:

Subechha was very interested in this topic and excited to know about insects. On the first day, she could name some insects in Hindi and some in English. By looking at pictures, she was also able to identify various insects. When questions were posed in the group, she often remained quiet until asked directly. When addressed separately, she tried her best to answer the questions. She also listened to a song about insects called “A Bug’s Life” and watched a movie titled “My Green Home,” which she found very interesting. She learnt about the life cycle of a butterfly and created a small chart explaining it to her friends. However, she needs to build her confidence, as she is quite nervous about speaking in front of the group. After the topic, she became more kind to insects and recognised which ones are harmful and which are helpful. Watching short videos after explanations helped her understand better, as she first received verbal information and then visual reinforcement.

Plants:

Subechha was very keen to learn about plants. She was familiar with the trees and leaves present in the school. She was able to differentiate between shrubs and herbs and remembered the names of various trees and plants. She successfully guessed and answered quiz questions about plants and could explain the functions of different parts of a plant. She was attentive while watching videos and became aware of the importance of plants in today’s life, including the concept of photosynthesis. She drew pictures of raw materials we obtain from plants and trees.

Food:

Through this topic, Subechha understood various types of nutrients, their roles, and the concept of a balanced diet. She experimented with making mango juice and enjoyed drinking it. She also drew pictures of healthy and junk food, displaying a lot of enthusiasm for exploring and learning about the topic.

Festivals:

Subechha learnt a song about festivals, showing great interest in learning it according to the months. This song taught her about the festivals celebrated each month. After discussing all the festivals in the group, she watched some videos, which clarified her understanding of several festivals she had not celebrated before. She also saw a map of India, learning about the festivals celebrated in different states. Her favourite festival is Ganesh Chaturthi.

Transport:

Subechha was very enthusiastic about learning about different types of vehicles. She recognised some vehicles that come to her school and village. Her favourite mode of transport is the aeroplane because it is the fastest way to travel, saving time. She drew pictures and created a school bus model by herself, colouring it beautifully. She enjoyed watching videos about different vehicles, learning about various drivers, parts of a ship, aeroplane, and bicycle. She found it easy to draw a bicycle and put in her best effort.

ENGLISH

After Subechha became proficient in reading three-letter words, she started reading the first beginner's children's books from level one to level ten. Once she was good at these books, she began reading the Ladybird series at levels one, two, and three. She is very good at reading these books. When she reads with the group, she keeps her fingers on the book, follows what the other children are reading, and remembers the new words and their pronunciations. She needs to improve her comprehension. She is better at speaking English. When she hears stories, she listens carefully. If any questions are posed in between, she is able to answer them easily. She was very quick to grasp the words of the poem "Surrender" while learning it, pronouncing all the words beautifully.

She excelled in working with physical objects. She has completed her first maths book and is now working on the second one.
