

The Faith Group

Report for 2024-25(Second term)

INTRODUCTION

At the heart of the school resides the Faith Group—a radiant constellation of fifteen devoted students, each a beacon of dedication and purpose. As the most senior group in the school, these young scholars have chosen to remain, not merely for academic pursuit, but to deepen their journey of self-discovery, service, and transformation.

Their commitment transcends the walls of the classroom, as they freely offer their time and energy to nurture the younger generation and breathe life into the very fabric of the school. They are the stewards of its integrity and the guardians of its spirit.

ACADEMICS

All members of the Faith Group are currently immersed in their undergraduate studies. Among them, Neela, Kokila, Jagat, and Lalu are in their third year. Jagat delves into the realms of science through a B.Sc program, while his companions pursue the poetic elegance of the B.A. (Hons.) in English.

Sushila, Basanti, Brishti, Harekrishna, Jayu, and Sumitra, now in their second year, continue their voyage through the world of English literature. Kumari, a budding first-year student, walks the path of science with a curious heart. Joining her in their first year of English studies are Malti, Pinki, Rohit, and Tulika—each a fresh blossom on the tree of knowledge.

Much of their academic guidance flows from the wisdom of Bhaiya, and they primarily engage with their courses through the ever-advancing medium of online education. United in diligence, they prepare earnestly for the examinations that lie ahead.

SHRAMDAAN

Beyond books and screens, the Faith Group members embrace a life of selfless action—shramdaan, their sacred offering. The older students, seasoned and steady, guide these efforts with humility and care. Whether tending to the Girls' Hostel Garden, adorning the meditation hall with fresh blooms, or managing kitchen duties, hostel upkeep, and the pristine school grounds, they lead by luminous example. Their responsibilities are shared and rotated, cultivating both leadership and humility.

Those not in guiding roles work side by side with younger students, embodying the spirit of community and cultivating life skills often absent from traditional syllabi. Each act of service is a lesson in responsibility, empathy, and grace. Their collective efforts have blossomed into a cleaner, more harmonious haven for all.

When the aroma of celebration fills the air and vast quantities of puri, paratha, or sweets must be prepared, the Faith Group is there—rolling, frying, stirring—working in unison with joyful dedication. Their spirit of cooperation and tireless work ethic echoes through every corner of the school.

VOLUNTEERING

In the quiet hours of the day, they turn to teaching. For two to five hours daily, they guide the younger ones with gentle patience, sharing knowledge in subjects close to their hearts. With children aged 3 to 10, they create nurturing spaces for growth—encouraging the use of English, enhancing classroom engagement, and weaving confidence into every lesson. This sacred duty, far from being a burden, becomes a source of academic enrichment and inner fulfilment.

SATSANG

And they do not forget the joy of play and praise. Weekly, each Faith Group member takes the lead in games and recreational activities, infusing vitality into the lives of children through laughter and movement. They also hold satsang sessions, where the air swells with the gentle rhythms of bhajans and songs, cultivating an early reverence for India's rich classical heritage amidst the distractions of the digital age.

GAMES AND SPORTS

At 5 o'clock, the school grounds echo with shouts of joy as games begin. The girls leap and dive on the basketball court, while the boys charge across the field during the earlier football matches from 4 to 5 pm, often joined by the younger children they so lovingly mentor. Volleyball, too, holds a special place in their hearts. Rain or shine, their feet find the field, and their spirits rise with each game.

As summer arrives, their joy finds its way to the cool, shimmering reservoir, where swimming becomes a shared celebration of life and freedom—a refreshing communion with nature that strengthens both body and bond.

In all they do—in service, in scholarship, in song and sport—the students of the Faith Group are quiet architects of change. They are the school's living promise: to walk the path of purpose, to lift others as they climb, and to let their light shine in even the smallest of acts.

CELEBRATIONS

(Please refer to the school report)

